that the Israeli excavations and changing the cultural landmarks of Jerusalem constitute a serious threat to the historic and cultural character of the boly city. The resolution was passed by a majority of 28 votes while the United States was the only state which voted against it.

The council called oo the UNESCO director general to study the status of all the cultural property located in Jerusalem and the dangers threatening it and to list the findings on the agenda of the next council's session. Mr. Ahmad Al Tawil, the Jor-danian deputy permanent dele-gate at the UNESCO, addressed the meeting pointing out the Judaisation measures of the Israeli occupation authorities in Jerusalem. He called on the council to work for stopping this Israeli aggression in order to preserve the cultural and spiritual heritage of the holy city which concerns the whole of mankind.

Sadat drops 'inner circle' aide, woos Copts with cabinet seat

CAIRO, Sept. 22 (R) - Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has followed up this month's sweeping internal crackdown by dismissing In AGL the Christian Coptic minority an extra seat in the cabinet. An overnight preaidential decree on a minor government reshuffle said the post of Mansour Hassan, minister of state for the presidency, was being abolished. Mr. Hassan was dropped from the cabinet and a spokesman for the ruling National Democratic Party said he would be nominated for the comparatively low-level ally at his side. Diplomans speculated that he may not have been fully committed to this month's roundup of religious extremists roundop, which was primarily aimed at breaking the power of fast-growing Islamic fundamentalist groups.

Arab mayors of Hebron and Halhoul, expelled last year from the Israeli-occupied West Bank, have asked Defence Minister Ariel Sharon to allow them to return to their towns.

Hebron Mayor Fahd Al Qawasme and Halhoul Mayor Mohammad Milhem were deported in May 1980, a day after six people were killed in an attack in Hebron.

The authorities accused the two of inciting the Arab population and creating an atmosphere of hostility to Israel.

Israeli lawyer Felicia Langer said today the mayors sent a letter to Mr. Sharon saying that while Israel's supreme court upheld the legality of the expulsion, it recommended last November that the decision be reviewed after a suitable period.

"Now that some time has passed and the circumstances that led to the expulsion have changed, the campaign was launched "in defence of Israel's legitimate we are asking the defence minister to allow them to return home." Mrs. Langer said.

will be carrying no new proposals to break the deadlock which had halted progress when the Egyptians suspended the talks last year.

While no breakthrough is in sight, Boutros Ghali, Egypt's minister of state for foreign affairs, emphasises that what matters is "to continue the momentum of the peace process ... to continue to talk."

In occupied Jerusalem, official sources indicated that Prime Minister Menachem Begin intends to maintain a hardline approach.

lsrael's chief negotiator, Interior Minister Yosef Burg, says Israel's original blueprint stands. and there is no need to change the proposals it bas on offer.

Mr. Begin agreed with President Anwar Sadat to reopen the autonomy talks when they met in Alexandria last month. Since August, both leaders have been to Washington to discuss Middle East prospects with President Reagan.

Mr. Ghali told foreign journalists last night it was possible this week's meeting would consider setting a new target date for completion of the autonomy talks. The last deadline -- May Israeli officials have said they 1980-passed with the negotiations in suspense. Egypt broke them off in protest over the building of new Israeli settlements and an Israeli legislation to proclaim occupied Jerusalem as Israel's eternal capital."

> Western diplomats believe Mr. Sadat decided to resume the talks is order to deay Mr. Begin any pretext for delaying the handing over next April of the last portion of Sinai still in Israeli hands.

Diplomats say Egypt is con-cerned that the low-level of U.S. representation may indicate only lukewarm interest by the Reagan administration. Reagan aides are still working on guidelines for U.S. policy in the Middle East.

Washington's delegation will be headed by Samuel Lewis, U.S. ambassador to Israel, and Cairo Ambassador Alfred Atherton.

Mr. Burg said last weekend that Israel's proposals offered the Palestinians 80 per cent autonomy. They would have control over labour affairs, transport, welfare, health, education, religious affairs and local government.

Egypt has said the offer is inadequate because it would leave Israel in control of land, water and power resources and Israelis would still be able to set up homes on Arab land.

Begin discusses Mitterrand visit

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM, Sept. 22 (R) - Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin discussed a proposed visit to Israel next February by French President Francois Mitterrand in a meeting today with Jacques Attali, a senior adviser to the French leader. French-Israeli relations were strained when French External Relations Minister Claude Cheysson met Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) Chairman Yasser Arafat in Beirut last month. Mr. Attali told reporters his visit to Israel was the first of a series aimed at improving relations between the two countries. Mr. Cheysson is due here in December to prepare for Mr. Mitterrand's visit, which would be the first by a French president to the Zionist state.

Exercising jet crashes on troops

ANKARA, Sept. 22 (R) - A Turkish military plane crashed on a unit of troops on an exercise in western Turkey today, killing at least 26 people and injuring 67, informed sources said. The plane, believed to have been a U.S.-built F-104 fighter, came down near the garrison town of Babaeski about 180 kilometres west of Istanbul, they added. A Turkish reporter at the scene said he had been told there were 50 deaths and 300 injured. Unconfirmed reports said the plane hit an area were troops were lunching in groups as fierce fires broke out. Vehicles and fuel storage tanks as well as the men were struck. The Turkish reporter said the injured, many of them badly burned, were being taken to hospital by a dozen military helicopters.

Qadhafi arrives in Budapest

BUDAPEST, Sept. 22 (R) - Libyan leader Muammar Qadhafi arrived in Budapest today for an official friendship visit at the invitation of Hungary's state and Communist Party leaders. He was met at Budapest airport by party leader Janos Kadar and President Pal Losonezi, the official Ol news agency said. Ol gave no indication of the length of Col. Qadhafi's stay and it was not clear whether it was related to last week's decision of the Confrontation and Steadfastness Front to seek closer links with the Soviet Union after the new U.S.-Israeh strategic accord. Libya set up an alliance last month with Ethiopia and South Yemen and Czechoslovak President Gustav Husak visited the three countries soon afterwards. Col. Qadhafi paid his first visit to Hungary in 1978 while Mr. Losonczi visited Libya in 1975. The Libyan leader's visit follows that of the emir of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaber Al Ahmad Al Sabah, who was here last week on an East European tour.

The pilgrim's passage

THE PILGRIMAGE to Mecca, known as the hajj. is one of the five pillars of Islam, the other four being a testimooy that there is no God but God and Mohammad is His messenger on earth: daily prayers: fasting during Ramadan, and almsgiving. Pilgrimage to Mecca is not mandatory for Muslims, but should be done at least once by those men who are financially and physically able.

For women, pilgrimage is also a duty, but they should do it either with a husband or with a mahram -- a relative whom they cannot marry -- which includes the father and grandfather, the son and grandson, uncle, nephew and brother.

Pilgimage to Mecca has its own moral code, which should be observed in order for the hajj to be accepted by God, according to Islam. Married couples travelling for hajj should shun sexual intercourse during their trip to the revered sites in Saudi Arabia. Pilgrims also should avoid squabbling with each other: should not kill animals, tear off tree branches or use perfume. When pilgrims prepare to enter Mecca, men should put on unwoven white gowns that do not cover their heads. Women, on the other hand, should cover their entire bodies except their faces and palms.

In Mecca, the first part of the ritual includes the tawaf or seven-fold circumambulation of the Kaaba, a rectangular shrine believed to have been first built by Abraham, during which pilgrims say prayers aloud in chorus. Tawaf starts at the sacred black stone in a corner of the Kaaba, which pilgrims touch, and even kiss, out of symbolic reverence for its traditional sanctity.

Following tawaf, pilgrims drink from Zamzam spring, the place where Hagar, the wife of Abraham, found water after spending several days wandering in the desert.

The next phase of the rituals is the trek between two places in Mecca, Safa and Marwa, Hagar is believed to have shuttled between the two spots in her long search for water. Accroding to tradition, she made seven round trips between the two places before she found the Zamzam springs. Then comes s stop at Arafat mount, where pilgrims say a special prayer. The next site is Muzdalifa, where pilgrims throw pebbles at what is called Satan's site, before they go to a place called Mina for two days.

At the end there will be a farewell march around the Kaaba, followed by the sacrificial slaughter of animals.

After the completion of hujj rituals, the pilgrims will go to the Prophet Mohammad's mosque in Medina for a brief visit and prayers, and to have their pilgrimage blessed.

Moderation blues

PRIME MINISTER Mudar Badran's statement to the National Consultative Council on Monday should be studied carefully by those in the West who claim they are concerned about the stability and security of so-called "moderate" Arab states. It is useful at this stage of things to step back for a moment from the day-to-day pressures of events and gauge the trend among the area's "moderates" during the past three or four years. Since, according to the scorecard of the West, we are among the leading "moderate" states in the area, it seems particularly appropriate for us to recommend such an exercise.

The fact is that the recent policies of the United States have put more pressure on the Arab moderates than perhaps any other event since the creation of the state of Israel in 1948. The American policy of total and uncritical support for Israel has discredited moderation and pro-Western leanings as an occupational hazard for the Arab leaders and states that adhere to such tendencies, and has also reaffirmed more eloquently than words could ever do that American professions of concern for the Arab World's moderates are fragile cliches that do not coincide with the reality on the ground.

Moderation, like love, is a two-way process. It is ungracious of the Americans to talk of Arab moderation on one hand and pursue policies, on the other hand, that are the gravest threat that Arab moderates have faced in the past several decades. The dangers the Arab World faces are not only from the direct ravages of Israeli-American aggression and occupation. They are also the dangers stemming from internal instability due to frustration, disenchantment and discontent with the lack of progress on solving the Palestine-Israel conflict.

ARAB PRESS COMMENTARY

TELEVISION is one of the greatest inventions in the history of mankind. It has a suhstantial influence on the minds and the mentalities of the people, and plays a major role in the formation of their behaviour and their deeds.

Watching Jordan Television is regarded as a pleasure by many people. There is a good variety of programmes spanning a wide spectrum of interests. In this article, I am not going to comment on the content of the programmes, which is an issue requiring many articles and debates. And I shall restrict the comments to some aspects of the presentation. which forms a point of weakness in our television.

The time of the news bulletin, which is watched by a large number of viewers. is announced by a clock and by a special audio-visual signal. The hands of the clock are not always accurately positioned and cannot be used as a reliable time reference by the viewers. The Arabic news' sign has a repetition of the word Al-Akhbar the news1 for no ohvious artistic or other reasons. A brief summary of the news, which is a favourable feature, is not presented regularly at the beginning of every bulletin. Reporting the news by a newscaster from the site of the event should be encouraged, since it adds more impact and flavour to the presentation. It also presents on-the-spot dialogue between the reporter and the people in the news, conveying real-life, up-to-date stories.

SCIENCE & INDUSTRY

The local news should bring in items from all parts of the country, and not just from the Amman area. The prices in the financial market, which are Watching Jordan Television announced at the end of the news, fit better somewhere else, probably in the Azizi Al-Mosnahed programme on Channel 3. The announcement of the prices should also include comments on the trends in the market, and not just reading out long lists of numbers in a boring fashion. And, although 1 encourage newscasting in as many languages as possible, I wonder whether Jordan Televisoo has carried out a survey to find out the number of people listening to the news in French, and in general, the number of viewers of every single programme on the screen! The weather forecast should entail more than just stating that the weather will be normal for this time of the year. Grammatical and pro-themselves in almost all programmes, news and advertisements. Terms, such as 'and now are used very frequently and precede almost any anoouncement, to the embarrassment of the sharp listener. The notification of future programmes is also weak: more axcerpts, snapshots and sound effects should be incorporated. The special programme for broadcasting the schedules of the viewing time should include major events around town, and, if possible, the latest, foreign currency rates.

The intervals hetween programmes are not utilised properly. They are usually left th look as relatively long pauses of blackout: otherwise, they display scenes of flowers or historical and other sites, without even mentioning what of where the site is. Another deficiency is the duplication in the programmes broadcast on both Channels 3 and 6, whereas more variety can be presented without additional cost. There is also a serious fadure in the mixing of the sound and the colour. The level of the sound varies from one programme to another, in particular with advertisements. The pour mixing of the colours is even more apparent. This includes the mixing of the components of the colour in the process of filming and transmission, as well as the adjustment of the colour of the various video films. The inconsistency in the sound and the colour forces the viewer at home to keep tuning the controls of his television set. This adds another advantage to acquiring a remote-control unit, and should be exploited as a sales tip by the dealers:

By Dr. Awn Rifai

They point to the four-year sen-tence handed down last July on Jirj Gruntorad for destrubuting matcriat of a banned pop group, and the seven and half years given to Rudolf Battek the same month on charges of subversion and assaultng a policeman.

Much is likely to be made of the money the two French citizens were accused of trying to bring m for dissideots writing for emigre ublications, the sources said.

According to dissident and dip-lomatic circles, the apparent cause for the Prague government's pre-sent anxiety, apart from the ghost of the 1968 "Prague spring" eform that continues to haunt Czechoslovakia's orthodox communist leaders, is Poland.

LETTERS

Freud has the answer

To the Editor:

My heart, which has for some years been comfortably blind to scratches and aches of realities, was awakened by Dr. Sabri's letter to us, the readers (Jordan Times. Sept. 20).

I was both sad and happy: sad because my vulnerability was awakened, and happy because of that meteor-like sensation of life for the duration of a second when senses are alerted.

I read a good deal of what is published in your paper, but I really can not be bothered to point out my observations because I have come across so many proofs of absence of common sense that makes it useless to try to correct anything.

Reasons for not reacting to the critiques published in your paper are very different from Dr. Sabri's conceptions of the case. First of all ask Dr. Sahn not to be depressed, because the only ones who read your columns are the ones affected most hy the facts mentioned, and are least able to effect changes. We do not have any illusions as to the outcome of your columns.

Perhaps one of the most obvious reasons for not getting response for your columns is the fact that we all are experts. We can criticise critiques of critiques (which is, hy the way, what consultants do), but, unfortunately, society does not follow the convenient rules of Freudian psychiatry (the cure is inherently present in the diagnosis). Hence, those of us who can diagnose agree with critiques: those who cannot diagnose cannot dispute the issue: those who are not affected care not; and the majority cannot read, and this majority have the cure hut know not.

The cure to all that is discussed in the columns of Dr. Sabri and your other writers is inside each one of us. suffering readers. It is a mere wall which when built inside you partitions your senses from your surroundings thus keeping out all the pain.

The various Arab societies and organisations which are working for the Palestine cause throughout the Uoited States would tell you about them. Since the committee has studied and discussed the matter. it should have come out with a systematic programme for the method and style of the boycott which it is urging upon us. Jordan vows support

AL RA'I: Jordan will never desert the stnadfast kinsmen in the occupied areas. It will never leave them under the mercy of the usurpers and occupiers, and will oot leave Arah lands there vuloerable to Israel's aggressive policy, suspect plans and evil practices against Al Aqsa Mosque and the Arah residents. Jordan will maintain support for them and will continue to honour its pan-Arab commitment towards them in truthfulness and dignity.

This was the meaning behind the meeting of the Occupied Territories Affairs Committee over which His Majesty King Hussein presided vesterday and which was atteoded hy His Royal Highness Crown Prince Hassan, the prime minister, the highranking officials of the government and the Governor of Jerusalem Anwar Al Khatih.

His Majesty the King affirmed that dangers can only echance the determination, resolution and insistence of this country to confront them and to resist the Israeli policy in the occupied areas, and the plots concocted against the steadfastness of the kinsmeo there.

Furthermore, Jordan's commitment to ending the occupatioo of the occupied territories, including Jerusalem is a strategic commitment regardless of the dangers and challenges resulting from it.

The American-Israeli strategic alliance will not make Jordan abandon its pan-Arab commitment towards the steadfast kinsmen in the occupied areas and will not make Jordan abandon its responsibilities towards these territories.

The autonomy plan will never be an alternative to the exercise by the Palestinian people of their legitimate rights on their national soil, and will oot make Jordan stop its support and assistance to the Palestinian people on all Arab and international levels.

Confronting the alliance

AL DUSTOUR: The talks which have begun in Tel Aviv betweeo American experts and Israeli officials to translate the strategic cooperation agreement into a joint plan of action clearly means that Israel has actually begun the tole of participation in drawing up the political and military strategic policy which the United States will try to impose on the Arab area.

Prime Minister Mudar Badran has warned against this serious development in his speech to the National Consultative Council (NCC) vesterday when he declared that the strategie cooperation is an American approval of the Zionist enemy's participation in protecting the area and in drawing up its policy as it wishes.

The American-Israeli strategic cooperation is a new obstacle in the way of peace and stability. not in this area only hut in the world at large. U.S. policy seems to be based on polarisation and is closing the doors for international relaxation. Such a policy has opened the doors of the Arab area to the policy of polarisation which has now become more evident than ever before.

The member states of the Front of Steadfastness and Confrontation defined their position in the Benghazi conference and decided to reply to the American-Israeli strategic cooperation by allying themselves with the Soviet Union.

The Gulf states are about to take a similar step after the Kuwaiti foreign minister called on the member states of the Gulf Cooperation Couocil to establish diplomatic relations with Moscow to achieve the strategic halance.

This dangerous situation can only be dealt with through a firm Arab action and a collective return to the umhrella of Nonalignment to protect the independence and identity of the Arah nation and to keep it free from the axes of polarisation. We hope the forthcoming Arab summit will take the practical steps to confront and foil the American-Israeli strategic alliance and to keep the area away from the international conflict and the policy. of polarisation.

past several years a Arab-related political administration announced its plans to sell five AWACS planes to Saudi Arabia, the uproar began. Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir fired the opening salvo announcing that Israel would do "whatever we can do to stop the sale." The Washington Post (April 23) said the Statement was interpreted as "a signal to the organised American Jewish lobby to wage an intensive fight in Congress" against the sale. ponsible media treatment inevit-

Almost as soon as the Reagan

Both the American-Israel Publie Affairs Committee (AIPAC - the unregistered Israeli foreign agent inthe United States) and the Anti-Defamation League (ADL) immediately responded, mimieking in their releases the Israeli government position that the Saudi Arabian government is "uostable, medieval, arrogant aod oil greedy ... concerned only with the destruction of America's only Middle Eastern ally, Israel."

. . . While the "hard news" reporting on the AWACS issue has generally been fair, the editorial pages of American newspapers have provided a forum for a tasteless display of anti-Arab defamation. Some editorial cartoonists, notably Herblock and MacNelly, seem to have exempted themselves from the norms of decency and fair play. The depiction of Arabs in a distorted and patently racist fashion has become their stock in trade. Their cartoons during the opening round of the AWACS debate were not exceptions. Herblock's "Arabs" are either overstuffed Sheikhs strangling or intimidating the West, or bloodthirsty terrorists bent on destroying Western values.

In an especially odious cartoon which appeared in the Washington Post, May 28, 1981, Herblock seems to have taken a page out of Nazi textbooks on anti-Semitic propaganda. The lesson Herblock's anti-Arab cartoons frequently seek to teach is clear, and similar to the lesson implicit in anti-Semitic propaganda: The Arabs are evil and seek to control us, but we should not bend to their control: we should strike back at them. The same message is found in New York Times ad purchased by the ADL.

Contemporary depiction of Arabs as grotesque and greedy Sheikhs, or as bloodthirsty terrorist subversives, bears a striking resemblance to the 1920 depiction of Jews in pre-Nazi Germany

In the West, Arab is frequently presented as a menace, a terrorist, a shadowy figure who operates outside of the accepted value system and is therefore to be feared and mistrusted. This racist image of the Arab is nothing more than the result of the transference of the popular anti-Semitic animus from a Jewish to an Arab target.

Syndicated columnist Joseph Kraft was so eager to enter the AWACS debate that he contrived to use the attempted assassination of Pope John Paul II as a pretext for his attack on the Arab World. In a shockingly bigoted column that appeared in the Washington Post (May 19, 1981) under the headline "The Dark Side of Islam," Kraft claimed that while it was Mehmet Ali Agca who attempted to kill the Pope, the real culprit was Islam, "a notorious eultural milieu." Kraft concluded his piece with an oblique cheap shot at the Saudi Arabian government, claiming that "the large lesson (of the assassination attempt) is that those who look to the Muslim world as a sure supplier of oil or a steady ally against Moscow do so at their peril."

The New York Times (April 27, 1981) ran a William Safire attack on the proposed sale under the insulting headline "Yamani or Ya Life." Safire caustically accused Yamani of "supreme arrogance and crude humor" for saying that the Israelis want to be aggressive," The idea that Israel may have aggressive designs on Arabs is unthinkable to Safire and also to the Israeli lobby, AIPAC, which said in its March 25, 1981 testimony before the House Sub-Committee on Europe and the Middle East that there is no reason for the Saudis to have AWACS since "there is no threat facing Saudi Arabia which justifies

In another AIPAC position paper still being distributed after Israel's bombing of the Osirak nuclear facility in Iraq. A1PAC again dismissed the existence of any threat to the Saudis and concluded that the only reason the Saudis want the AWACS is so that they can "move against much weaker opponents", i.e. the state of Israel.

This argument of Safire and AIPAC is an old one, first enunciated in 1936 by Chaim Weizman, who described the Middle East conflict in the following terms: "There are two forces contending in the Middle East, the civilisation" as unsupportable and, by definition, aggressive, since they threaten to block the advance of the superior civilisation. Thus in the thinking of Safire and AIPAC and their antecendent Weizman, the world is turned upside down. In their view, the Israeli attack on Iraq is "a supreme moral act of self-defence" and the recent Saudi desire to obtain AWACS become "a threat to civilisation."

The AWACS debate has eased for a while, hut only because the Reagan administration has decided not to submit the sale proposal to Congress for a vote for several months. The dehate is certain to build once again to a tuntultuous fury as soon as the proposal comes before Congress in the late summer. We ask: Can the dehate be carried out within the bounds of reason and decency? We in the West have learned to distinguish bigotry from other torms of argumentation -- when it affects us. Can we apply the same standards when we discuss an issue relating to the Arah World?

We are not calling lor a turning of the tables. We are not asking William Satire to write "Begin' for More Arms" after Israel requests a resumption of F-16 shipments.

Nor do we want MacNelly to pen a cartoon depicting an Israeli inscribing "Arab hunter" on an F-16 on its way to South Lebanon.

What we do want is recognition of the danger of allowing defamation to become an element in foreign policy debates. Such a practice inhibits all of us from understanding and evaluating serious issues of public policy on the sale."

ECONOMY

LONDON, Sept. 22 (A.P.) - The number of unemployees in economically troubled Britain rose by more than 58,000 this month to 2,998,789, or 12.4 per cent of the national workforce, the employment ministry announced today.

The increase, the 16th straight monthly rise, means that one in eight of the working population is now without a job amid widespread closures and mass lay-offs. Labour union claimed the unemployment total was already over the 3 million mark.

One of the worst-hit regions was strife-torn Northern Ireland. The ministry said 113,962 persons there were unemployed, the worst figures for the province on record.

That's 19.8 per cent of the province's labour force, or one worker in five jobless. Today's gloomy figures drew swift and bitter condemnation from opposition Labour Party leaders and their union allies, who have blamed Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's tight-fisted monetarist policies for driving industry to the Domestic oil production up in U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (A.P.) - Domestic crude oil production in August in the United States surpassed the rate for the same month last year by 26 per cent, the American Petroleum Institute (APII reported veslerday.

August crude oil production in the United States increased by 228,000 barrels a day over last year -- the highest rise in what has been a consecutive three-month increase -- the API said. Total U.S. crude oil production averaged 8,639,000 barrels a day versus last August's 8,422,000 barrels a day.

The API said the lower 48 states production figures are marked in contrast to what had been a steady production decline through most of the 1970s.

The API also reported that crude oil imports fell about 18.3 per cent in August compared with year-earlier levels.

Major U.S. banks cut prime rate

NEW YORK. Sept. 22 (R) — Several major U.S. banks cut their prime lending rate by half a point to 19.5 per cent yesterday because of easier money market conditions as the economy slows. But analysis and bankers did not believe it heralded the long awaited sharp decline of U.S. interest rates generally

The Chase Manhattan Bank was the first to announce the half-point reduction and was soon joined by Chicago's two biggest banks, Continental Illinois National Bank and Trusi and Frist National Bank of Chicago.

The prime is the rate banks usually charge top-rated corporte customers. Rates on loans to most other businesses are scaled upwards from the prime.

The Federal Reserve Board, which sets national monetary policy, has allowed banking system reserves to grow faster of late and analysts said the Fed may case its credit policy because money supply growth had been below target recently.

But they believe that the Fed is determined to hold to its basic policy of limiting monetary growth to fight inflation.

Japan criticises high U.S. interest rates

TOKYO, Sept. 22 (R) - Japan's Finance, Minister, Michio Watanabe, today sharply attacked the high interest rate policy of the L'nited States which he said had had many adverse effects on other countries.

Many nations would express their distatisfaction at coming meet-Many nations worker expression of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and World Bank in Washington, he said.

Mr. Watanabe made his cumments at a press conference at which he welcomed the U.S. central bank's reduction from four to three per cent vesterday in the surcharge on its discount rate for banks that borrow frequently from it.

Mr. Watanube also criticised high U.S. interest rates in an interview with Reuters today and said he doubted they would help bring down American inflation.

He said Japan does not have very effective means to counter the effects of the high U.S. levels, which he said had led in a weaker yea and higher domestic prices, and had slowed foreign investment into Jananese shares and bonds.

Mr. Watanabe said there was no chance of fresh international discussions on coordinating interest rates, which was a major topic at the Ottawa summit of seven leading nations in July.

He disclosed in the interview that there was heated arguments in Ottawa over a suggestion by one country that it should be the turn of the United States to support other currencies against the strong dollar since they had helped the dollar in the past.

Kenya given go-ahead to stage All-Africa games

NAIROBI. Sept. 22 (R) - Kenya have been asked by the Supreme Council for Sport in Africa (SCSA) to stage the fourth All-Africa games in 1986, the Kenya National Sports Council said today.

They said the SCSA had failed to find a country to organise the games as scheduled in 1982 and were forced to come back to Kenya, who originally intended to stage them in 1983 but gave up because of a lack of facilities.

A Chinese firm is expected to start building a national sports complex to house the games on the outskirts of Nairobi next year, government officials said.

The letter to ambassador Brois ish leaders. In the latest, issued Aristov was published by the free trade union's bulletin as a high level Soviet delegation held talks with Polish leaders on future economic cooperation.

Poland relies heavily on raw materials from the Sovict Union. especially oil and cotton. Fears have been expressed by some Solidarity members that Moscow might use its economic leverage to bring the Polish revolution to beel.

The railway workers' message to Mr. Aristov was in response to a letter he delivered last week to Polish leaders denouncing Solidarity and condemning what Moscow sees as a rampant anti-Soviet campaign in Poland.

The Soviet letter sparked a series of stern warnings from Pol-

The centre-left coalition of Mr. Eyskens, which took office just five months ago, collapsed last night following the emergence of a deep rift between the French-speaking Socialists (P.S.) and their coalition partners over new funds for the loss-making steel giant; Cockerill-Sambre. It was the sixth government to fall since elections in 1979 and official sources said new elections might have to be called to find a way out of the country's apparent political impasse.

But elections could not be organised before November, and the sources said the political vacuum caused by such a delay would

Mud halts NATO drills

HANAU, West Germany, Sept. 22 (R) - Mud stopped a NATO exercise involving 70,000 soldiers today.

A U.S. military statement said the manoeuvres known as "certain Encounter" were called off a day ahead of schedulc after heavy rain caused tanks to churn mud on to public roads.

Certain Encounter" began nine days ago in West Germany as one of the annual war games staged by NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation. It covered about 5,000 square kilometres near the border with East Germany.

The mud left on public highways by armoured vehicles was a hazard to driving and a prime consideration for cutting the exercise short, the statement said.

Namibian talks concluded

CAPE TOWN, Sept. 22 (R) - South African Foreign Minister Pik Botha said today that talks in Zurich on U.S. independence proposals for Namibia (South West Africa) had ended and he was delivering a full report to the cabinet.

Discussions which began vesterday between a South African delegation headed by Brand Fourie, director-general of foreign affairs and the U.S. team, headed by Assistant Secretary of State Chester Crocker, have been veiled in secrecy.

Sam Nujomo, leader of the South-West Africa People's Organisation (SWAPOI, was quoted yesterday by the Portuguese news agency AMAP as saying he would agree to "no change whatsoever" in the U.N. independence plan for the former German Colony.

Topics of the Zurich talks reportedly included a proposed timetable for free elections and self-rule in Namibia.

According to Mr. Ozal's aides, the 28 year old Sahin aget his love, Leyla Mahmutova, when he was visiting relatives living in Kazan-luk, Bulgaria last year. "Bulgarian sufficients have refused to issue her a visa and provide the other documents necessary for our issue her a visa and provide the other documents necessary for our issue her a visa and provide the other documents necessary for our marriage. I beg you to unite us and we are desperately in love with each other." Mr. Ozal, who economic programmes are credited with slashing Turkish inflation from 100 per cast to less than 40 per cent, proved just as effective with Bulgarian rodtape. During a recent visit to the Balkan neighbour for takes on bilateral economic issues, Mr. Ozal chatted with his Bulgarian counterpar Andrei Lukanov. Mr. Ozal's sides said Mr. Lukanov relented and prumise him that Miss Mahmutova, an ethnic Turk, soon would get a visa to leave Bulgaria.

4 East Germans enter W. Germany

COBURG, West Germany, Sept. 22 (A.P.) - Two soldiers and two civilians at nightrime escaped across the "death strip" from East to West Germany. Bavarian police have said. The two East German soldiers who fied together wore civilian clothes and made the crossing without their weapons, said a Bavarian border police spokesman. The two civilians crossed the minefields and alarm fences at another point on the southern border of East Germany near here, police said.

All four said they were dissatisfied with political conditions in the East, according to police. The refugees were not identified.

Dacca sticks to death sentences

DACCA, Sept. 22 (R) - Twelve Bangladesh army officers are to be executed for complicity in the assassination of President Ziaur Rahman in a coup attempt last May. The supreme court today rejected appeals against death sentences passed on the officers by a military court. A lower court had turned down appeals by relatives of the condemned officers, saying it had no jurisdiction to interfere with the verdict of a military court.

The supreme court gave its judgment after a five-day hearing and rejected a separate plea for a temporary stay of execution. An automatic stay pending the supreme court hearing was lifted and sources said the executions could be expected at any moment.

The military court tried 31 officers in connection with the attempted coup. Seventeen were given prison terms and two were released after turning state witness.

Tremor causes scare in S. Italy

POTENZA, Italy, Sept. 22 (R) - An earth tremor jolted southern Italy early today and thousands of frightened people spent their second consecutive night in the open, police said. France launches world's fastest train service

PARIS, Sept. 22 (A.P.) - President Francois Mitterrand rides with the engineer (driver) this evening to officially inaugurate the world's fastest scheduled train service.

French officials see it as a new era of railroad travel that eventually could spread across Europe and through a channel tunnel to London. Mr. Mitterrand will travel north from Lyon in one of France's new "Train a Grande Vitesse" (TGV1 (high speed train) units that cruise at 260 kilometres per hour on special tracks some 50 kilometres an hour faster than the top speed of Japan's famed "Bullet" trains.

The streamlined units of eight cars, with an engine at each end, start public service Sunday (Sept. 27) between Paris and Lyon, other south eastern towns and the Swiss city of Geneva. They have 360 seats, though two units can be coupled to carry more than 570 passengers.

The trains, which also run on regular track, will cut travel time to Lyon from a current 3 hours 48 minutes to 2 hours 40 minutes now, and to two hours in 1983 when the special track is completed. The 5 hours 40 to Geneva will drop to 4 hours 20 and then 3 hours 40. French railroad officials confidentally predict the TGV will take as much as 50 per cent of current airline passengers on such routes. If the long-dreamed-of channel tunnel is built, as Mr. Mitterrand and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher have suggested, the trains could link the centres of Paris and London in two and a half hours, easily matching total air travel time, door to door.

Though the cruising speed nears that of a racing car, the TGV trains have a large inhuilt safety factor.

A standard model set the world's absolute train speed record earlier this year at 380 kilometres per hour, 120 kilometres faster than the regular operating speed, and without any damage to train or track.

Unlike the Concorde supersonic airliner, the TGV will be a "democratic" train. All services will have first and second class seating - three or four seats across the airline-style cars -- and except for peak hours, will be at regular prices.

A few peak services will carry a 20 per cent fare supplement, but will still be cheaper than the air fare on French domestic services. Meals will be served at the seats, or in a bar-restaurant car, where preview riders have found no trouble in standing and drinking at the bar while the train is running more than 200 kilometres per hour.

The services will be extended in 1983 to Marseilles and Montpellier on the Mediterranean Coast. Though journeys times will approach 5 hours, and railroad surveys show under three hours to be the critical time to grab air traffic, there is still expected ro be a good clientele for the quiet, comfortable TGVs.

The Socialist government, which inherited the project from its centrist predecessors, has already agreed in principle to extend the network to other regions.

Salvadorean president ready to talk with leftists

WASHINGTON, Sept.22 (R) -El Salvador's President Jose Napoleon Duarte has told President Reagan he was ready to negotiate with his leftist opponents if they would abandon efforts to take over by the violent means

He talked with Mr. Reagan yesterday briefly during what he said was a private visit to the U.S. designed chiefly to canvass support for his efforts to end El Salvador's civil war and hold democratic elections next year.

The Reagan administration, charging that leftist guerrillas have received arms from Communist countries, has made opposition to the leftists a major element in U.S. foreign policy and is sending military and economic aid to the Duarte government.

A senior administration official said Mr. Duarte had stressed his desire for a negotiated solution and Mr. Reagan had questioned him about this in some detail.

He said Vice-President George Bush, who talked with Mr. Duarte, asked him about reports of violence against civilians by members of the government's national guard.

Mr. Duarte said about 600 members of the guard had been dismissed and 64 imprisoned for offences against the people, the official reported.

Asked by reporters about national guard brutality, Mr. Duarte referred to violence "from hoth sides" in El Salvador and said "we all have to forget about violence" and seek a political solution.

President Duarte said that if his leftist opponents "believe in Moawad authorised to open many democracy, then we have the chance to sit down, talk and solve close during fighting which all the detailed problems."

The U.S. is providing $104 million in economic aid and $35.4 million in military assistance this year and the Reagan administration has asked congress for a total of $132 million next year.

The meeting, which comes at a time of deep chill in U.S.-Soviet relations, will be closely watched by America's European allies which are unsure of the U.S. commitment to arms control. It will be the first high-level meeting between Washington and Moscow since the Reagan administration came to power in January this year.

Mr. Haig, who has taken a leading role in the administration's tough anti-Soviet campaign, has said he hopes to discuss Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, the invasion of Kampuchea by Moscow's ally Vietnam and what he called Soviet "proxy activity".

But the veteran Soviet diplomat is expected to reject any attempt by Mr. Haig to link arms control with Soviet conduct around the world. although there is little doubt that the Kremlin sees the talks as crucial for the future of U.S.-Soviet relations.

The two men are expected to name a date, prohably November, and a place, believed to be Geneva, for negotiations on so-called Theatre Nuclear Forces (TNF).

Under an agreement with its allies, the United States is committed to negotiations with the Soviet Union on reducing nuclear missiles in Europe. Washington's North Atlantic Treaty Organ-deployment of multiple warhead SS-20 missiles aimed at Western Europe.

Moscow has been calling for a missile freeze by both sides and more recently has offered to dismantle some of its SS-20s as part of any deal with the United States.

Western analysts have described the offer as an attempt to appeal to vocal elements in Western Europe opposing the NATO missile modernisation plan.

The Netherlands and Belgium have been reluc-tant to accept the new missiles if there is hope of getting Moscow to reduce its nuclear threat but Mr. Haig said European consensus on the deployment of the missiles remained firm.

Mr. Haig's meetings with Mr. Gromyko are among a large number of hilateral talks he is due to hold during nearly two weeks he will spend in New York for the U.N. General Assembly.

The Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) negotiated with the Soviet Union by the Carter administration has never been approved by the U.S. Senate and does not have the hacking of the Reagan administration.

Eugene Rostow, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament agency, has said the United States will be ready for new strategic arms negotiations by the spring.

Youngest heart transplant patient dies

MINNEAPOLIS, Minnesota, Sept. 22 (A.P.) - Nine-year-old Wendy Spicer, who had been the world's youngest living heart transplant patient, has died at University of Minnesota Hospital, a spokesman said. Miss Spicer was hospitalised Saturday after developing rejection symptoms, said Ralph Heussner, a hospital spokesman. The girl died yesterday of complications related to rejection of the heart she received in a transplant at the hospital on May 5, Mr. Heussner said. Five years ago, Miss Spicer developed myocardiopathy, a disease that turned her heart muscle into fibrous tissue similar to scar tissue. She received the heart of an 11-year-old accident victim, and was released from the hospital June 9. Since then, she had returned to the hospital periodically for treatment. When Miss Spicer was first released from the hospital, Dr. John Najarian, chief of surgery at the hospital, said the following two months would be the critical period in the child's recovery. During that period, she had started fourth grade and had been horseback riding only a few weeks ago, Mr. Heussner said.

Lebanese students: exams the last worry

BEIRUT --- Some 40,000 Lebanese high school students last week completed three weeks of examinations, with many of them taking major risks to get to examination halls guarded by troops and security forces.

And many belong to parties of right or left who would be deadly and internal security forces, along enemies outside the school confines.

But the government was determined the sectarian divide should not be reflected in the examination hall as well.

"The aim was to hold the exams. We bet on that and we won," Mr. Moawad told Reuters. "We also wanted them to be held in secure conditions, where the Lebanese could come together. That is what happened at the joint centres, where the two communities sat side by side."

The day before the exams were due to start, mortar and artillery clashes in a poor southern suburb of Beirut threatened to block the last main crossing point between the eastern and western sectors of the capital. But a truce was arranged in time for students to get to examination halls for an 8.00 a.m. start.

In the south of the country bordering Israel, some exams were held at Naqoura, the coastal headquarters of UNIFIL, the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon.

For the three weeks of the exams. Lebanese papers carried half-page reports on what students and supervisors thought of security, how easy or difficult the questions were and whether there was any cheating.

Mr. Moawad and Prime Minister Shafiq Al-Wazzan made a special series of inspection tours round examination centres which were highlighted in the press.

The coverage underlined the importance attached to education in Lebanon, which has six university-level institutions.

American University of Beirut said attempts by students b (AUB) and the French-language St. Joseph University, have traditionally been standard-setters for the Arab World and competition for places is high, with students coming from many other Middle East states.

Reports of widespread cheating at some centres last year caused an uproar. Exams for students in the entire southern region were cancelled

In the southern town of Sidon, students had torn up examinationpapers in protest against the strict supervision of exam centres. They argued that they should be shown greater leniency because of the difficult security conditions under which they had to study.

But the then education ministe Batros Harb said there was n question of applying differen standards.
